Play on two levels

The Troy play environment provides fun and games on two levels. Up top, one tower boasts a ship's wheel, which when turned rotates the sword in the middle of the knight's shield on the other side. Troy also has a lookout barrel with a movable telescope, which sets the scene for role-play over longer distances. At ground level is the treasure chest panel to inspire role-play, while at the same time training hand-eye coordination when the sliding diamond and rat are moved. There is also the ball panel for play involving numbers and coordination.

Troy is basically a maintenance-free play system that guarantees many hours of fun.

It's all go on LEDON's tube slide

Troy also boasts one of LEDON's popular tube slides. The tube slide will bring smiles to the children's excited faces, while also helping them to assess distance and speed. The windows in the tunnel provide ample light. Troy's floor height of 140 cm guarantees high-speed action on the slides.
